- Introductions

- Automated Content Access Protocol (ACAP)

This is a relatively new trade standard protocol that enables content owners to exert greater influence over the parties being granted access to their online content. We'll hear how this might be of value to owners of market data.

- Quantifying the Issue of Piracy and Misuse –

Can we reasonably measure the amount of piracy and misuse of market data across the globe? If so, what are the benefits? Are there measurements other than simply lost revenue? Even if we can quantify, does the investment of time, resources and money outweigh the benefits?
